

I grew up in the Roy Rogers era. What a thrill it was to watch Roy get the bad guy, time after time, and he never even had to kill them; he just shot the guns out of their hands! My point is that we were entertained...and we knew that good triumphed over evil... and we didn't have to sit through graphic, bloody scenes to get there. Our poor kids are so desensitized to violence and mayhem that they think those things are how a "real man" lives his life. Take pity on us and get rid of the violence! Thanks for listening.
